Residents gather to debate future of St. Patrick's

'It's our land.' Public meeting brings calls for using former high school site for non-profit and arts groups

HALEY RYAN
haley.ryan@metronews.ca

The first public-engagement session on the future of the old St. Patrick's High School site on Quinpool Road saw dozens call for a mixed-use development, green space and room for non-profit and arts groups.

About 60 people gathered at the Halifax Forum Wednesday night to hear a presentation by HRM staff on the condition of the old school.

"It's our land. We have the ability to say, 'This is what we want,'" said area councillor Jennifer Watts.

Siloën Daley of Carbon Arc Cinema Co-op said she hopes staff looks into keeping the 60-year-old school's auditorium as a much-needed space for arts groups, stating to applause that such groups are the "heart and spirit" of a community.

Residents brainstormed ideas like green space, housing for all ages and incomes, architecture, underground parking and commercial space or eateries at street level.

"It was nice to hear that a lot of people are interested in keeping community and green space and arts as top priorities ... more than 'How can we make a quick buck?'" Daley said.

Bringing the building up to code would cost an estimated $10 million, so city staff is recommending HRM demolish the school and rezone the site for development.

It's going down

Demolition of St. Patrick's could begin in fall 2014, according to HRM staff.

Watts said this is the first time HRM will use Administration Order 50, a policy governing the disposal of surplus property, which came after the "painful" experience with St. Patrick's-Alexandra.

She said the new process is more transparent and easier for citizens to track.

The process also created five different categories under which to evaluate sites. Watts said St. Pat's likely fits into the economic development category, allowing for partnerships between non-profits and developers, but says the property should be sold at the $6.76-million market price.

Former volleyball coach guilty of sex crimes to be released

With his four-year sentence nearly complete, a former Dartmouth girls volleyball coach convicted of sexually assaulting one of his underage players is set to be released, according to documents obtained from the Parole Board of Canada.

Joseph Emile "Luc" Potvin pleaded guilty in September 2011 to multiple charges of sexual exploitation against a 17-year-old girl during his time as a volleyball coach at Prince Andrew High School.

The teenage victim addressed the court in a statement explaining how the ordeal had brought on an eating disorder, anxiety and depression.

"No one will ever understand what it was like," she said. "No one."

Potvin was convicted later that month of child luring, possessing/producing child pornography and sexual assault.

His statutory release date is May 31, 2014.

As a condition of his release, Potvin — who is now in his mid-fifties — may not be in contact with the victim nor any girl younger than 18 years. He must stay away from areas where children gather and is banned from possessing pornography or any computer or phone with access to the Internet. Finally, he must report all intimate relationships to his parole board officer.

'I just wanted to stay with her'

'Horrible accident.' Woman dies after bicycle collides with transport truck in Dartmouth, say police

A Dartmouth woman who came upon the aftermath of a fatal collision between a cyclist and a truck Wednesday afternoon said she wanted to hold the victim's hand before paramedics arrived because, "I felt like it was my daughter."

According to police, the woman, in her thirties, was riding her bicycle north on Windmill Road in Dartmouth just before 3 p.m. when the north-bound truck turned right onto Albro Lake Road and struck her.

"(It's) just a horrible, horrible accident," said Elizabeth Tanner, who was walking along the road when she saw the woman lying on the ground and the truck near the intersection.

"I just wanted to stay with her for as long as I could."

Tanner said her son is a paramedic and she works in health care, so she felt she had to help the cyclist.

She could tell the woman was fatally injured, Tanner said, but held her hand and reassured her that everything was under control and she should hang on.

"I'm so glad I was here for her. I felt like it was my daughter," Tanner said.

Halifax Regional Police spokesman Const. Pierre Bourdages said the woman died at the scene, but has not been identified.

He said police have "very limited details" on what happened, and investigators are trying to reconstruct the scene with information from witnesses, as well as the driver and passenger of the truck.

He added that he did not know whether the driver or cyclist was on their phone, or whether the woman was wearing a helmet.

"We really have no indication as to why (it) occurred," Bourdages said. "It's a very tragic collision."

Universities should focus on learning: Student report

The study. It suggests a full review of current teaching practices

haley.ryan@metronews.ca

The next time someone hears about the ranking of a Canadian university, or how many tenured professors they have on staff, Jonathan

Williams hopes they question whether students are really learning.

Williams, the executive director of Students Nova Scotia, said their new report Focus on Learning: A Student Vision for Improving Post-Secondary Education in Nova Scotia, illustrates the need for schools to track and improve student learning through outcomes and other tools.

"We do need to say what we expect our students to learn, and we need to measure whether or not they're learning that," Williams said Wednesday.

Williams said there needs to be more of an emphasis on what students learn and the quality of education rather than the reputation of a school, how much research and papers they produce, or what the class sizes are going in.

"Those things don't reflect really whether students learn," he said.

Quoted

"Universities can't just say that they have really great quality, they need to prove it."

Jonathan Williams

The report suggests a full review of current teaching practices in universities, creating a separate fund tied to initiatives to train current and future professors, developing common learning outcomes shared across the province, and implementing the Collegiate Learning Assessment (CLA), which measures what students are achieving in each program and holds universities accountable.

Learning outcomes are all about letting students know what they can expect from a degree, whether it be a bachelor of arts, sciences or a doctorate program, and being clear about whether or not they're achieving those things, Williams said.

After holding focus groups with students, Williams said overall satisfaction is "quite high" at most universities and colleges in the province, and the report is not meant to say we have poor quality post-secondary education.

"We just need to get more focused on what students are supposed to learn, and whether or not ... the environment is supporting them."

A new report from Nova Scotia's acting auditor general released Wednesday warns that 1,600 registered water supplies — including wells used by restaurants, apartments, campgrounds, schools and nursing homes — are not being audited every three years as required. JEFF HARPER/METRO

AG calls for better water monitoring

Acting auditor general. Report makes 19 recommendations to fix issues with Nova Scotia's public water monitoring

Nova Scotia's Environment Department is doing a poor job of monitoring some drinking water supplies, the province's acting auditor general says in an annual report released Wednesday.

Alan Horgan said he found that municipal facilities are generally audited every three years as required, but registered facilities are not.

These 1,600 registered water supplies are typically wells used by restaurants, apartments, campgrounds, schools and nursing homes.

"The nature of the inspections and the fact that audits for the registered water supplies were not being done as frequently as required increased the risks," Horgan told a news conference.

Among other things, Horgan found instances when water samples were not obtained from registered facilities within the required 30 days after a boil advisory was removed.

As well, guidance for staff was inadequate, which resulted in a lack of followup after deficiencies were found in previous audits, the report adds.

"The fact that there isn't much guidance out there resulted in inspectors doing their own thing, and thus being inconsistent," Horgan said.

The report makes 19 recommendations to fix the problems.

Environment Minister Randy Delorey said he has accepted Horgan's recommendations. However, he insisted the risks associated with these lax standards were low.

"What we haven't seen is public-health concerns or outbreaks attributed to public water in the province of Nova Scotia," he said.

"I think that's a testament to the fact that the risk level is low."

Conservative critic Chris d'Entremont challenged that view.

"As a father, I want to know that the water that my kids are drinking in school or that my grandparents are drinking in a long-term care facility is quality water," he said.

"I don't think that this government can truly give us a report on whether they are or aren't."

Aside from the registered facilities, there are 84 municipal water supplies in the province that provide drinking water to about 60 per cent of the province's residents.

iNSchool system gets poor grade for security

Nova Scotia's electronic student information system does not fully protect the confidentiality of sensitive personal data, including grades and medical information, the province's auditor general says.

Alan Horgan, in an annual report released Wednesday, said his staff exploited security weaknesses of three school boards to gain full access to the iNSchool system.

The iNSchool system is used by teachers and parents to track programs and student progress, but it also contains health card numbers, home addresses, telephone numbers and birthdates.

Horgan said there is a serious risk that someone could make unauthorized changes to the data and student safety could be compromised.

"Each board looks after its own account settings and some of these settings were too weak to protect the confidential information stored in the systems," Horgan told a news conference.

He said the threat of a security breach is real, noting that his team of auditors learned that the system had been subjected to previous cyberattacks.

"There were some cases where we saw that every attack was two seconds apart, which suggests that they're automated," he said. "There is software being used to try to break into these accounts."

The acting auditor general said the iNSchool project team has already fixed the most critical security issues, but his report says a privacy assessment has yet to be completed.

There are intrusion-detection systems and firewalls in place, but Horgan said they could be improved and the report makes nine recommendations to enhance security.

Horgan said the Education Department and school boards should enforce strong password and account settings, track all requests for access and develop a disaster recovery plan.

The department has agreed to implement all of Horgan's recommendations.

Temporary foreign workers tripled in Atlantic Canada

The use of temporary foreign workers tripled in Atlantic Canada between 2005 and 2012, says a new report that warns changes to the controversial program could make it more difficult for businesses to use.

The report by the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council said the number of foreign workers in the region rose to 10,913 in 2012 from 3,499 on Dec. 1, 2005.

"Despite the rapid growth in the number of temporary foreign workers in Atlantic Canada, they account for only a tiny fraction of total employment," David Chaundy, a senior economist with the think-tank, said in a news release Wednesday.

The council said the largest increases were in lower-paying, lower-skill occupations, such as fish plant and food service workers.

Chaundy also said the federal program continues to be an important tool for the recruitment of managerial, professional or specialized technical workers needed for short-term work.

That might become more difficult if the federal government alters the program significantly, he said, following allegations of abuse by companies that fired Canadian employees in favour of cheaper foreign workers.

Federal Immigration Minister Jason Kenney announced a moratorium on hiring new temporary foreign workers in the food service industry last month and new rule changes are expected soon.

AFTeR president Joanna Dunn speaks about a new website encouraging Nova Scotians to recycle used textiles during a press conference at the Art Gallery of Nova Scotia Wednesday morning. PATRICK MCKENNA/FOR METRO

Don't throw out that holey sock

Textile recycling. $12M worth of value going to landfills each year, says environment minister

GEORDON OMAND
halifax@metronews.ca

Finding a new home for holey socks, ripped jeans and other worn textiles in Nova Scotia just got a whole lot easier.

The Association for Textile Recycling — a consortium of mostly not-for-profit organizations — has launched a website aimed at informing Nova Scotians about textile recycling across the province, including what and where to donate.

"So many people don't realize the wide variety (of textiles) that we take," said AFTeR president Joanna Dunn on Wednesday.

"We will take your one sock, we will take your ripped jeans ... and turn them into funds that support our organizations."

The associations include Big Brothers Big Sisters, the Canadian Diabetes Association Clothesline, the Canadian Red Cross and the Salvation Army, among others.

The initiative — which began last year and received $15,000 in provincial funding — dovetails with the government's goal to reduce per-person landfill waste from 370

What to donate

Clothing, blankets, towels, linens, tablecloths, drapes, curtains, footwear and belts that are damaged, holey or threadbare.

kilograms to 300 kg by the end of 2015.

The government is also considering a total ban on sending textiles to the dump.

"About 11 per cent of all waste going into Nova Scotia landfills consists of textiles," said the province's environment minister, Randy Delorey.

Access the AFTeR website at www.afterwear.ca.

Suspect sought

Greeting-card store held up

Police are searching for a suspect after an attempted robbery in Scotia Square.

A release from Halifax Regional Police states a man in his fifties armed with a knife walked into Carlton Cards around 10:45 a.m. Wednesday and demanded money.

The female clerk refused to give him anything and fled the store.

The suspect is described as a white man, about five foot six and thin, with a scruffy moustache.

He was wearing a dark blue jacket, light blue jeans and a red bucket hat. METRO

Autopsy. Body found in Sask. is missing N.S. man

Police say an autopsy has confirmed that human remains found in central Saskatchewan are those of a man who disappeared the night of his stag in Saskatoon.

Marine researchers found the body in the river about 200 kilometres from Saskatoon on Saturday.

Gregory "Myles" MacIntosh, a former resident of Lunenburg, N.S., was reported missing Feb. 2.

On the night of his disappearance, MacIntosh reportedly got into a fight aboard a pub crawl bus before getting off and then falling in the river.

'Educate the public' on violence against women: Minister

Wanted: Public campaign. $500K in new government funding goes to centres across Nova Scotia

halifax@metronews.ca

Nova Scotia's community services minister has announced half a million dollars in additional funding for centres that support women in the province.

But Joanne Bernard said more work needs to be done to educate the public about violence against women.

Bernard, a former executive director of Dartmouth's Alice Housing, said Wednesday she'd like to see an education campaign similar to MADD's campaign against drunk driving two decades ago that brought the issue to the forefront.

"(A campaign) would educate the public on not only the rights of women and children not to live in violence, but also the responsibility we collectively have as a society to report it," said Bernard.

Bernard said it will be up to the centres to decide how to spend their share of the $500,000 in annual funding.

That includes an extra $115,000 for Alice Housing, which provides safe housing for women and their families, and Bryony House — shelters whose services are in high demand. The remaining $270,000 will be divided amongst the roughly 17 transition homes and women's centres throughout the province.

"I have enough trust in women's organizations to do their budgets and their programming," said Bernard after a news conference at the Women's Council House in Halifax's south end.

"It could be used for programming, it could be used for their shelters, it could be used for outreach — anything they see as a gap in services."

Bernard couldn't say how much money in total is given to centres annually by the province because she says it varies with demand.

Rhonda Fraser, co-chairwoman of the Transition House Association of Nova Scotia, said it's important that support for services that assist women continues to grow.

"As long as violence against women exists, we do not have safe and healthy communities in a way that I think we would all like to have," Fraser told the news conference.

Dartmouth

Housing program expands

A program that helps people find housing in the municipality has opened a new office in Dartmouth.

A news release says the Dartmouth Housing Help office will serve as a more convenient location for residents in Dartmouth, who currently seek help from the Halifax Housing Help office. The office at 260 Wyse Road will be managed by Metro Non-Profit Housing Association and the Public Good Society of Dartmouth and is being funded by United Way over four years. The society's other services, including its community that transports people to various services, will be available through the new office. The Halifax Housing Help office helped more than 200 people last year who were homeless or at risk of becoming homeless. It also helps direct people who require emergency shelter to the appropriate agencies.

Flood recovery to cost billions in Serbia, Bosnia

Bosnian residents from a nearby village film floods in the village of Dornaljevac near the Bosnian town of Orasje along the river Sava, 200 kilometres north of Sarajevo, on Wednesday. Floodwaters have receded in Bosnia and Serbia just enough to reveal the next shock: Recovery from the historic flood will probably cost billions of euros that neither country has. Although there's no official total for flood damages, the Raiffeisen Investment Group said in a note to investors that preliminary estimates are nearly $1.8 billion US for Bosnia alone. In neighbouring Serbia, Prime Minister Aleksandar Vucic has said damage could range up to $2 billion. The record flooding has led to at least 44 deaths: 22 in Bosnia, 20 in Serbia and two in Croatia. Bosnia has one of the lowest gross domestic products in Europe and an unemployment rate of up to 44 per cent. AMEL EMIRIC/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS three northeastern villages, terrified residents said they hid in the bush and watched while Boko Haram fighters set their thatched-roof homes ablaze.

"We saw our village go up in flames as we hid in the bush waiting for the dawn. We lost everything," Apagu Maidaga of the village of Alagarno told The Associated Press. The nearby villages of Bulakurbe and Shawa were also attacked.

In Jos, at least 118 people were killed in Tuesday's bombings, and 64 were hospitalized.

Most victims were women and children who worked as vendors, said Mohammed Abdulsalam of the National Emergency Management Agency. "We expect to find more bodies in the rubble," he said.

East Ukraine

A quiet majority grows frustrated

Rotting garbage is piling up in the hallways of the government office building seized by separatists in eastern Ukraine. Telephones ripped from the walls are piled atop broken furniture and mounds of old files. The stench of sweat and stale cigarettes is everywhere. The guards, slouching men with pistols shoved in their pockets or flapping loosely in holsters, look increasingly bored.

It's been six weeks since they took over the building, a week since they declared independence from Ukraine. But the authority of the alleged nation barely extends beyond their 10-storey office tower and a few heavily armed checkpoints on roads leading into this industrial city 80 kilometres (50 miles) from the Russian border.

In the streets of Donetsk, the separatist leaders and their followers are increasingly derided as a collection of heavily armed, barely employed misfits.

Outside of the rebels' headquarters, it can be difficult to find anyone who agrees with their calls to secede from Ukraine and link this part of the country — with its generations of ethnic and linguistic ties to Russia — to Moscow. Signs of frustration abound.

Ukraine sees tension letup as Russia pulls back

Ukraine. Good news, bad news: Russia claims to be pulling back its troops but vote at risk in the east

Days before Ukraine's presidential elections, the interim government Wednesday relished what felt like a letup in tensions.

President Vladimir Putin insisted Russian troops have begun moving away from Ukraine's borders, and the nation's wealthiest and arguably most influential businessman made an impassioned appeal for a cessation to unrest in the east.

And yet, armed pro-Russian insurgents in turbulent eastern regions of Ukraine continued to roam with im-

Speaking to reporters at a security summit in Shanghai, Putin said Moscow's decision to de-escalate its military presence near Ukraine was motivated by a desire to see the election proceed smoothly. NATO said that it didn't yet see any signs of a withdrawal.

Charles feeds Hudson the polar bear

Prince Charles feeds a polar bear at the Assiniboine Park Zoo in Winnipeg on Wednesday. There was a look of mock trepidation on the prince's face as he came close to the bear, which was on the other side of a chain-link fence. Charles and his wife Camilla are on a four-day tour of Canada. The prince used tongs to offer some fish to two-year-old Hudson, who gobbled up the treat. Charles remarked on the size of Hudson's paws, and a zoo-keeper explained how polar bears are able to pull prey from the water with one swipe.

Prince sparks debate with Putin comment

Hitler comparison.
Off-the-cuff remark made in Halifax prompts discussion in U.K. on monarch's role

The seemingly off-the-cuff comment reportedly made by Prince Charles in Halifax comparing Russian President Vladimir Putin's actions in Ukraine to the territory-seizing of Adolf Hitler has stirred debate in the United Kingdom about the role of the monarchy.

Labour Party MP Mike

Gapes weighed in with a tweet that suggested the Prince of Wales should have kept his comments to himself.

"In constitutional monarchy policy and diplomacy should be conducted by parliament and government. Monarchy should be seen and not heard," he tweeted.

When someone asked him about the prince's right to free speech, he replied on Twitter: "If you are heir to throne or monarch what you say matters. Normal 'free speech' argument not relevant." But Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg said the prince was "free to express himself."

"I have never been of this view that if you are a member of the royal family somehow you have to enter into some Trappist vow of silence," said Clegg.

"I think he is entitled to his views. But I don't know whether those were his views because I just don't think providing a running commentary on what were private conversations is useful to anybody." Britain's Daily Mail said Charles made the comment during a visit Monday to a museum in Halifax.

Twin-towers trauma. Visitors to 9-11 museum get tissues, counselling

There are prominent videos of the twin towers collapsing, photos of people falling from them, portraits of nearly 3,000 victims and voicemail messages from people in hijacked planes.

But behind the wrenching sights and sounds of the National September 11 Memorial and Museum in New York lies a quiet effort to help visitors handle its potentially traumatic impact, from silent spaces and built-in tissue boxes to a layout designed to let people bypass the most intense exhibits.

Discreet oak-leaf symbols denote items connected to the dead, and the images of falling victims are in an alcove marked with a warning sign.

And American Red Cross counselling volunteers stood by as the museum opened to the public Wednesday.

"There's a lot of thought given to the psychological safety of visitors," said Jake Barton, who helped create the exhibits.

New York

The new National September 11 Memorial and Museum aims to help visitors handle its potentially traumatic impact.

- The museum's layout allows people to bypass the most intense exhibits.

- Tissue boxes are built in.

Museum planners realized early on the challenge of trying not to shatter people "while at the same time being true to the authenticity of the event," said Tom Hennes, founder of exhibit designer Thinc Design.

Trauma specialists told museum leaders that sounds of voices and images of hands and faces could be particularly distressing, and that visitors should get to choose what to see.

Shooter of student pleads not guilty

Argues he was protecting property.
German exchange student, 17, slain after entering man's garage

A man trying to catch the thieves who targeted his house pleaded not guilty Wednesday to deliberately killing a 17-year-old German exchange student who entered his garage, a case that ignited debate about laws allowing people to kill to protect their property.

Markus Kaarma, 29, of Montana, was arraigned in the April 27 death of Diren Dede of Hamburg, Germany.

Deputy Missoula County Attorney Andrew Paul said Kaarma's neighbours fear him and the investigation into the deadly shooting turned up a pattern of irrational and aggressive behaviour.

Defence attorneys argued the neighbours' fears are "not based in logic" but are a result of the public outcry over the case that caused some critics to question a Montana law that allows people to use lethal force to defend themselves or their property.

Prosecutors allege Kaarma and his girlfriend were frustrated over recent burglaries and set up motion sensors and video cameras to try to catch the thieves.

The couple had left their garage door partially open the night of the shooting, and Kaarma blindly fired four shots into the garage after they spotted a trespasser, charging documents said.

Prosecutors say Dede was apparently looking for alcohol when he entered Kaarma's garage.

Telecom. Federal privacy law challenged for being unconstitutional

The Canadian Civil Liberties Association is challenging the constitutionality of a federal privacy law that allows private companies to disclose personal information to the government without a warrant.

The challenge comes amid revelations that telecommunications service providers have been disclosing private customer information to government agencies on a broad scale.

In its application to the Ontario Superior Court, the association says law enforcement may have a need for some personal information, but the current law is too broad and should be struck down.

The association says the consequences of allowing government to access and share personal information without a person's knowledge or consent can be very serious and violate fundamental constitutional rights.

The court filing also said the law allows government agencies to share information with foreign governments in some cases.

Seven-year plan.

Money will help pay for research into the primary health-care needs of mothers, newborns and children

A week before an international conference on maternal and child health care opens in Toronto, the Harper government is rolling out announcements on what it sees as its signature issue on the world stage.

In Geneva, Health Minister Rona Ambrose pledged $36 million over seven years to help improve the lives of women and children in sub-Saharan Africa.

Hours later in Calgary, Deepak Obhrai, the parliamentary secretary to Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird, unveiled another program to help mothers and children in South Sudan.

Ambrose was at the World Health Assembly in Geneva when she pledged the money to help pay for research in nine countries into the primary health-care needs of mothers, newborns and children. The countries are Ethiopia, Ghana, Tanzania, Mozambique, Mali, Senegal, South Sudan, Malawi and Nigeria.

Obhrai said Canada will put up $19.9 million over six years to staff and equip four mobile primary health-care clinics and provide other services to 350,000 people in more than 600 remote communities in Warrap state, South Sudan.

Canada will also help train 1,500 community health volunteers, deliver 116,000 anti-malarial bed nets and build 170 safe drinking water points.

The announcements come ahead of the May 28 to 30 conference in Toronto, which is aimed at helping to shape future action on maternal and child health problems.

Seven days of Soylent

Forgoing solid food.

Soylent may be convenient but it's not very appetizing, says reporter Jessica Smith Cross, who spent a week living on the liquid

jessica.smithcross@metronews.ca

Standing at the streetcar stop a few weeks ago, tired and hungry after a long day at work, my arms loaded down with groceries, I longed for Soylent.

I had interviewed Rob Rhinehart, whose company sells Soylent, a beige liquid that he claims has every nutrient, calorie and protein the body needs. It's made from a bag of powder — maltodextrin (simple carbs), rice protein, oat flour and a blend of vitamins and minerals — and a packet of oils that provide fat and omega-3s. It costs about $10 a day. You just mix, carry it around in a water bottle and sip.

He'd promised to send a sample. Though I enjoy eating and cooking, the idea of taking a break (from shopping, cleaning, being too busy to eat and then wanting anything covered in cheese) was appealing.

People worldwide are clamouring for Soylent. His company raised more than $1 million in pre-orders through crowdfunding and more still in venture capital funding.

Rhinehart, who is trained as an electrical engineer, was working at a failing startup in California when, time and money-starved, he decided to "hack" food. He wrote a blog post called "How I stopped eating food" about eating nothing but Soylent for 30 days.

"My energy level had skyrocketed at this point. I felt like a kid again.... I feel like the six million dollar man. My physique has noticeably improved, my skin is clearer, my teeth whiter, my hair thicker and my dandruff gone," he wrote.

He went on to live on Soylent for two more months. Today, he relies on it for 90 per cent of his meals, he said.

It sounded wonderful, so I decided to give it a try. Here is my own account of seven days on Soylent. The rules I set for myself: I couldn't eat anything; I drank Soylent, as well as coffee, lattes and water; I imbibed a few alcoholic drinks and an Italian soda.

Results may not be typical.

Metro reporter Jessica Smith Cross ate nothing but Soylent for seven days. METRO

Tuesday

With a friend as fellow guinea pig, I mixed my first batch of Soylent with equal parts trepidation and excitement. The smell was familiar: vanilla, like batter, the taste slightly sweet with chalky notes.

Moments later we received news a mutual friend had died, not unexpectedly. Soylent was forgotten. That evening, friends snacked as we swapped stories of the departed. Later, as they cooked dinner in my kitchen, I thought about how food is a ritual we bond over in joy and grief. When there were breaks in conversation, a friend would ask about Soylent, and everyone would weigh in with a question, thought or joke. It helped.

Wednesday

I felt awful. I began having heartburn and I'd feel discomfort after drinking it. I was finding myself not hungry but missing being full. Instead of a break from food, it was all I was thinking about. Any advertisement, mention or smell of food would upset me. I couldn't stop thinking of the scene in the dystopian sci-fi film Soylent Green

(in which their Soylent is made of people) where the character Sol — who hasn't had real food in years — takes great pleasure in eating lettuce. Oh God, I missed lettuce.

Thursday

I was getting bored with the monotony of Soylent, so for breakfast I added espresso powder and ice. For lunch, when I tried to microwave it, my meal got thick and exploded. But thinned down with some hot water and cocoa powder, it made a passable hot chocolate.

The cravings for real food weren't going away. When a co-worker offered me a doughnut, I barked "No" so loudly the whole newsroom stared at me.

Later at a get-together, I tried a Soylent cocktail and made a Bailey's-whiskey mix. Not bad, but after one I'd had enough.

Friday

On Fridays I volunteer at a breakfast drop-in program. I thought it would be difficult to be surrounded by and cooking large quantities of food. Fortunately, it was so busy I didn't have time to think about it.

Saturday

At a friend's cottage, the host put together a beautiful array of food — fruit, nuts, cheese, meat, bread, avocado and hard-boiled eggs. I stared longingly. This was the start of my food-staring phase. When my husband was eating a delicious-looking beet salad that night, I couldn't tear my eyes away. My mouth watered. "Describe it to me," I demanded.

"This is weird," he replied.

Sunday

At dim sum with friends there was more staring at food, more jokes about how crazy it is not to eat. It was funny, but I was sad to miss the experience of sharing and tasting food. I noticed it was getting easier. The trouble digesting Soylent was all but gone. I got used to feeling a food craving, acknowledging it and moving on. I had the energy to go out dancing.

Monday

At the gym, I was happy to find I was in the same shape as the week before. I had the energy for my normal workout. I hadn't lost or gained weight.

Day 2

"I was finding myself not hungry but missing being full."

On tap

A future free of food fears?

Rhinehart's company is working to get Soylent to crowdfunding after lengthy delays. They're now shipping to Americans who ordered a three-month supply.

In the long term, Rhinehart said he envisions a world where Soylent is free on tap and no one has to worry about food again.

In line with that vision, he's taken an open-source approach to Soylent: he posted the recipe online and doesn't have any patents. He said there will be some changes to the recipe, as he hopes to source much of the product from algae as it's an environmentally friendly and efficient food.

A clinical trial to determine the health effects of a Soylent diet is underway, said Rhinehart. Most skepticism from nutritionists, dietitians and doctors have come from a lack of testing.

"That's kind of overkill for a food," said Rhinehart. "A lot of people get very concerned about this product, but it's just food, like fish and chips or cereal."

for the user to live on it entirely; that wouldn't be very interesting or very fun. But it is possible," Rhinehart said.

He said Soylent is a substitute for "utility" meals: meals you don't have time to enjoy and likely aren't healthy as it's expensive to eat well on the go.

But then, Soylent isn't that kind of diet. In the last few hours, I made a batch of muffins for the morning and it took all of my will not to eat one.

The final gulp

I never got to the point where, like Rhinehart had described in his blog post, I wouldn't crave food if I smelled it but want Soylent instead. I never felt I had extra energy.

Rhinehart attributes the "six million dollar man" feeling to his switch from an unhealthy diet to a healthy one, so perhaps I had a healthier baseline.

Knowing I'd been eating nothing but Soylent all week, he told me that wasn't Soylent's intended use. Soylent's marketing department had told me the same after I complained on Twitter about finding that hard.

But, everything I read about Soylent, beginning with Rhinehart's own blog, was Soylent could be all the food you need.

It's been heralded in the media as "the end of food" and a product that could change the world as we know it, so I was disappointed to be scolded for trying to live on it for just a week.

"The product wasn't meant

Airport concessions director Paul Brown said there are plans to create a VIP lounge area of the club, separate from the sports bar — at 1,500 square feet — on a different floor. The lounge is expected to open in the late fall, Brown said.

Brown called the lounge a "scaled down" replica of original club.

40/40 restaurant and lounges also are located in Manhattan and the Barclays Center in Brooklyn. Jay Z also had clubs in Las Vegas and Atlantic City, N.J., but both closed.

40/40 is known at the New York locations for its live music and sports memorabilia and for attracting sports celebrities and music stars such as Nicki Minaj and Lil Wayne.

The original Manhattan location opened in 2003, with Jay Z and business partner Juan Perez.

40/40 was named after the rare feat among ballplayers of hitting 40 homers and stealing 40 bases in one season.

DRESSING FOR BACHELORS 101

Clothes make the man, wouldn't you agree?

When I met my girlfriend, I worried I'd no longer be able to write about my favourite topic: bachelorhood. But I always understood deep down that bachelorhood is not about your relationship status. It's about living a lifestyle that leads acquaintances to assume you live in the woods, possibly with wolves.

If you eat Mini-Wheats directly from the box for "dinner," wash the dishes by whacking them against a hard surface or, yes, dress like you found your clothes in the dumpster outside the Goodwill, then you get to keep the bachelorhood union card.

My wardrobe keeps me rooted in the comfortable environs of bachelorhood, girlfriend or no.

I'm not what you would call fashion-forward, or even fashion-sideways, but I dress pretty well.

I mean, if there's a tie involved I can't. And if my back's acting up then putting socks on requires a repeated fishing motion until I "catch" the sock on my big toe. And I find it hard to work buttons

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle

while I'm looking in the mirror.

But when my girlfriend and I went shopping for jeans this week, my contribution was pulling them on, so I definitely dress pretty well. Usually.

Despite these wardrobe malfunctions, I still have the bachelor clothing itself down to a science. Observe with these tip-top tips:

How to be a fashionist: Clothing for bachelors

Befashionable in bulk: The worst part about clothes is that you have to buy them. One of the reasons I've managed to keep slim over the years is that when my jeans start to get tight in the waist, I lose weight. Self-discipline? No. I'd simply rather diet and exercise for three months than shop for 45 minutes.

So, if you try on something you like, make a beeline back to the table it came from and buy it in every colour available. Also buy larger sizes for when you gain weight and smaller sizes for when you're old and frail.

If anyone notices you're wearing the same pattern day after day, it means they like you. Go for it.

Dress outside the box: Say you only have one black button-up shirt that you've worn for at least 10 years and which gets used for every semi-formal event, from wedding to funeral to job interview for newspaper columnist. Hypothetically.

If that sounds like you, your wardrobe probably seems a little spare. But wait! Did you know you can wear that shirt unbuttoned OR buttoned? Tucked OR untucked? Clean OR dirty? Suddenly one shirt is an entire wardrobe! The possible combinations are literally six!

Out-wait your clothes: I find it's best to wear clothes until the last possible moment of their life. Your jeans should moult off your body as you buy a new pair.

And do you have dirty clothes lying about that fail the smell test? If you let old laundry sit long enough, it will eventually pass the little-used smell re-test. Everybody loves a redemption story.

I hope you find these fashion tips useful. It's not about the look, it's about the attitude. The clothes make the man.

Or put another way, I wear the pants in my relationship. Whichever pair she chooses.

Not-so-happy times for dancing Iranians

An Internet video of six young Iranian men and women dancing to Pharrell Williams' Happy has led to their arrests, showing how far Tehran will go to halt what it deems to be decadent western behaviour — despite the views of its moderate president.

Criticism outside Iran was predictably swift Wednesday, with calls for freedom for the jailed youths zipping around social media. Williams tweeted: "It's beyond sad these kids were arrested for trying to spread happiness."

A tweet posted Wednesday

Pharrell Williams GETTY IMAGES

evening on President Hassan Rouhani's account seemed to address the controversy, even if it stopped short of mentioning the video or the arrests directly.

"#Happiness is our people's right," it said. "We shouldn't be too hard on behaviours caused by joy."

Other social-media posts suggested at least some of the dancers had already been released, though there was no independent confirmation from authorities.

The case was another reminder of the tensions that exist at the highest levels of Iranian power, with hard-liners determined to maintain the status quo while moderates try to push through change — be it improved relations with the West or a loosening of morality clamp-downs at home.

Hard-liners are increasingly challenging Rouhani as the country negotiates a nuclear deal with world powers. The president campaigned for greater cultural and social freedoms in his bid to succeed Mahmoud Ahmadinejad last year.

After 10 years, rock band's tunes still ring loud and Trew

Anniversary. After a decade of creating music, The Trews' new crowdfunded album rings in a new era

BACKSTAGE PASS
Jenna Conter
halifax@metronews.ca

It's been a decade for The Trews and they've still got it.

To the surprise of no one, this Nova Scotia-born, Toronto-based rock group continues to push the pedal to the floor, pumping out five studio albums, hitting countless stages and acquiring an impressive number of nominations. The boys have found a way to thank those who have kept them relevant.

Guitarist John-Angus MacDonald shared that their 10-year anniversary album couldn't have happened without the help of their fans. Literally.

PledgeMusic is a method of fan-funding that uniquely connects devoted fans with the musicians. MacDonald said celebrating their 10th year and the production of this album created the perfect time to incorporate this method of funding, following in the footsteps of musicians such as Slash and Amanda Palmer.

"In return for their contributions towards funding the record, the fans become investors in the project. It's a pretty symbiotic relationship with our fans and I think it's a cool way forward for the industry," said MacDonald.

Though a revolutionary step for the music industry, which continues to seek new footing in what is trending to be more than a digital phase, it remains to be seen if this method will entirely replace the current protocol.

Each dollar donated matched up to an exclusive way to become part of the record.

"Fans got to pledge on experiences and access," MacDonald said. "We were able to offer up things like private lessons with band members, Skype chats and studio visits. Some people were pledging on vocal backings and hand claps on the record."

Beyond the bounds of inspired funding formats, this latest self-titled album for The Trews also marks a new method for creation for the band.

"We spent a good seven months just writing before we got anywhere close to a studio. Once we felt good about the material, we picked a director, Gavin Brown, and studio, and it all went down pretty quickly," said MacDonald. "This was definitely a separate process."

Bringing material old and new to a sold-out house at the Marquee Friday night, MacDonald is excited to play to his home-town crowd.

"We look forward to getting in front of the Halifax audience. It's one of the best in the country."

Music to our ears: MMVA noms

MMVAs. Drake and Hedley are in the lead with six nominations each, while Pharrell scores a nomination for the first time

Toronto rapper Drake and West Coast rockers Hedley lead the way with six nominations each for the 2014 Much Music Video Awards, to be handed out June 15.

Vancouver hip-hop artist SonReal is next with five nominations while indie ensemble Arcade Fire and alternative R&B artist The Weeknd scored four nominations each.

Both previously announced performers Imagine Dragons and Lorde have two MMVA nominations each.

Additional first-time nominees include music innovator Pharrell Williams; Australian boy band 5 Seconds of Summer; plus Canadian artists July Talk, Keys N Krates, MAGIC! and Thugli.

Reality stars Kendall and Kylie Jenner were named last week as the hosts of the award ceremony. "Kendall and Kylie are sure to bring their undeniable charm and trendsetting style to this year's epic award show," said a press release. The 25th anniversary of the MMVAs will air at 9 p.m. ET on Much, CTV, and CTV GO. THE CANADIAN PRESS WITH FILES FROM METRO

John Turturro gets all the attention

Fading Gigolo. The actor-director plays a high-end escort, directs Woody Allen in new film

EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

At first glance, the attention-grabbing part of John Turturro's latest film as an actor and director, Fading Gigolo, is that it's about a mild-mannered flower salesman (Turturro) who ends up getting pimped out by an older pal (Woody Allen) to service high-end female clients (played by the likes of Sharon Stone and Sofia Vergara). But hidden under that comic shell is a poignant look at the dying mom-and-pop store culture of New York City.

There's an impressive warmth in this.

That's because we shot it on film. We tested film and digital, and we decided that film was more flattering to all the ladies. It's just softer. It creates a world of the film, like when you see a beautiful photograph or a painting and it's kind of evocative, it's something you can be invited into. And I chose a lot of very hard places to shoot in because they were all so small, so tiny. And listen, to get Woody out of khaki pants? Come on.

How did you do that?

I said, "Woody, that's not in my colour scheme." After being involved with the project for a couple of years and working in the theatre together, he was like, "OK."

I even got a ski cap on him. I mean, he's in a black jacket. He looks great!

Woody doesn't often act for other directors.

No. He likes me, I wrote the script, he gave me feedback on it, I revised it, we worked in the theatre together. So that's a two-year process of what you're seeing. In a way, Woody encouraging me and push-

When I directed these plays, Woody would tell me, "Everything is great. Just don't f--- it up."

Your film takes place in a world that's disappearing: small, independent NYC shops.

These places are going. It's easy to be nostalgic about stuff, but there is a loss when there's less individuality and it's all the same. Go into a Starbucks, everyone's alone. I'm an investor in my bookstore in Park Slope because I like to be able to go to a bookstore that's not a chain. I don't like things that are too big, like supermarkets. They scare me. I just feel like that's not the way it's supposed to be.

Have the Coen Brothers been in touch with you about the Barton Fink sequel?

They're waiting for me to get really old, yeah.

They said it might be time. How does that make you feel?

Well, I'm ready for whatever they want to do. They want to grey me up, that's fine. Obviously with them I would do whatever. They're really some of my closer friends in the business and just in general.

Rachel and Mr. Schue?! Lea Michele admits to once dating Matthew Morrison

Lea Michele is changing her tune when it comes to her past with Glee co-star Matthew Morrison, but that's what happens when you have a book to sell. Back in 2010, stories cropped up about how the two had dated briefly before joining the hit musical series, but both vehemently denied them. "He's been a friend of mine from New York. People are going to make things up. I think it's just because we really are so close," she told Hollywood.com at the time. But now? In her new book, Brunette Ambition, Michele recounts, "When we shot the pilot, I met Cory Monteith, Kevin McHale, Amber Riley and Chris Colfer for the first time. I had worked on Broadway with Jenna Ushkowitz and Matthew Morrison before. Matt had been a friend of mine for years, and in fact we'd actually dated back in the day." Glad we got that cleared up.

Khloe and Kourtney want Klown charged

MELINDA
TAUB
Metro World News

Khloe and Kourtney Kardashian are pressing criminal charges against a Los Angeles man for criminal battery. Sounds serious, until you find out that what he battered them with was confetti.

The sisters were walking on Melrose in Los Angeles when local street performer Richie the Barber, who was riding his unicycle nearby, spotted them. The clown hurried over and showered them with confetti, according to TMZ.

The two sisters were not amused. They immediately filed a police report, which the police reportedly ignored as frivolous. However, Khloe and Kourtney followed up several days later, indicating that they planned to press charges.

Police then asked Richie the Barber if he intended to harm the women. He said no, according to TMZ. The confetti was meant to congratulate them on their success.

Let's hope Kim and Kanye don't have rice thrown at their wedding — Kim's sisters might have them arrested for attempted murder with a deadly weapon.

Not that anyone would say Jennifer Aniston is out of shape, but a rather catty source close to the former Friends star insists that Aniston is looking to shed an extra 10 pounds before tying the knot with fiancé Justin Theroux. "No way is Jen getting married at this weight. She'll lose another 10 pounds before she'll walk down the aisle," the source tells Radar Online. "Jen's besties, including Chelsea Handler and Courteney Cox, have been informed of Jen's weight loss plan and support it — which sounds terrible, but is absolutely how Jen operates among her peer group."

Beaching it like Beckham

Let's talk trunks. The ex-footballer takes a dip into swimwear in latest collaboration with H&M.

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News

If you only knew of David Beckham's existence through billboard posters, you'd swear that the man lives his life in tiny trunks. The 39-year-old's latest collaboration with Swedish retail chain H&M does little to dismiss that image. This time the tattooed body beautiful is launching, in his words, "a simple, old Bond movie-inspired" swimwear range of board shorts, trunks and swim shorts as part of David Beckham Bodywear for H&M. It's at a rooftop open-air swimming pool with gushing girls and water fountains that 'Goldenballs' reveals his designs that will hit stores globally today. Metro chats to Becks about stripping down, movie cameos and why tighty whities are his trunk of choice.

You've worn many different styles of swimwear over the years but which is your preferred cut?
I've kind of always gone for the tighter, smaller swimwear, personally. I'm sure there's gonna be a point where I'm not going to like it as much. But at the moment and from a very young age I've always gone for the tighter smaller white ones. One of my first actual holidays with Victoria — we'd only been together for about eight months — I remember wearing a tight Gucci pair, which was quite daring but I was obviously trying to get her attention. I wouldn't wear the smaller tighter ones walking down the beach with my kids. They'd be embarrassed.

Speaking of embarrassment, how do your boys feel about you wearing such a revealing style? Have you achieved embarrassing dad status? (Chortles) They do give me the embarrassing dad look when they walk past a billboard of myself.

My mum does exactly the same. She will call up and say, "I've just walked past a huge billboard of you in your underwear." The boys are used to it now. The boys will kind of actually take selfies of themselves of me and my underwear.

You have to stay in great shape for these campaigns. Don't you ever want to just kick back with a beer?
Yeah, I do that anyway. I just have to make sure I work out in the morning after. To be honest, I actually don't really work out every single day. I always take the boys and Harper to school. Trying to find time to work out during the day is difficult.

For how many more years are you going to keep stripping down?
Not many more. I'm not trying to get away from that, but obviously I'm 39 years old now and I don't think people want to see me in my underwear beyond this age. I'm still comfortable doing it but there will be a point pretty soon that I'll hang my underwear up.

Once you've hung up your underwear, are you going to move into acting? Maybe a cameo in a Bond movie?
Umm, no. I never wanted to go into acting in any kind of way. I've dipped in and I've dipped out. I've enjoyed doing certain things and when I've done it, it's always been done pretty well. I've been working with great directors like Guy Ritchie. But acting has never been something that I've kind of wanted to go into. But you never know, you never know.

LAURA CALDER

PARIS EXPRESS
SIMPLE FOOD FROM THE CITY OF STYLE

Paris is known for its whimsical tourist attractions, romantic backdrops and, of course, its indulgent food.

In Paris Express: Simple Food from the City of Style, Laura Calder demystifies the idea that Parisian bites are technical and tedious.

With photos of both dishes and city scenes as well as about 120 recipes, Calder helps readers to build their Parisian kitchen repertoire through helpful tips. Recipes include Veal Fricassée with Mushrooms, Seared Duck with Plum Compote, Red Onion Tart, Raspberry Clafoutis, and more. METRO

Steak Tartare. This bistro favourite is authentically Parisian

"Burgers are storming Paris at the moment — hélas! — and everyone eats them with a knife and fork," writes Laura Calder in her book Paris Express. "But steak tartare remains a bistro favourite, and I prefer it hands down, as long as it's a good one, which, quite frankly, is a rare find (no pun intended).

"To make your own, be sure to get the meat from a reputable butcher and let him know you'll be serving it raw. A bit of fresh horseradish grated over the final product is classic. The contrasting crunch of thin slices of lightly toasted olive-oil-rubbed baguette are de rigueur with this, unless you're going to play bistro yourself and serve it with crisp french fries."

Ingredients

- 8 oz (225 g) rib-eye steak
- 1/2 shallot, minced
- 2 anchovies, rinsed and chopped
- 1 raw egg yolk (or 1 tsp mayo)
- A handful of chopped fresh parsley
- 1 tbsp chopped cornichons
- 1 tsp chopped capers
- 2 tsp Dijon mustard
- 2 tsp Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tsp Cognac (optional)
- Few drops hot pepper sauce
- Salt and pepper
- A squeeze of lemon juice
- A handful of micro-greens, for garnish
- Olive oil

1. Make this dish just before serving.

2. If you haven't had the butcher mince the meat for you, put it in the freezer for about 30 minutes to make it easier to cut, then mince it very, very finely with a knife.

3. In a bowl, mix the shallot, anchovies, egg yolk, parsley, cornichons (gherkins), capers, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, Cognac (if using), and hot pepper sauce. Add meat and mix well. Season with salt, pepper, and lemon juice. Shape into 4 patties and arrange on plates.

4. For garnish, dress a handful of micro-greens very lightly with olive oil, lemon juice, and salt and pepper. Set a pinch on top of each tartare shape and serve. RECIPES FROM PARIS EXPRESS BY LAURA CALDER ©2014 (PUBLISHED BY HARPERCOLLINS PUBLISHERS LTD. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.)

Roasted Confetti Ratatouille

"Confetti-like sparkles of tomato and warm-coloured peppers make this roasted take on ratatouille different from the average chunky, soupy mix," writes Laura Calder in Paris Express.

1. Heat the oven to 400 F (200 C). Toss all the ingredients together — except the olives and basil — and spread in a single layer on a baking sheet (or 2 smaller baking sheets, depending on their size). Bake, stirring once or twice, until tender, 20 to 25 minutes. Stir through the olives and basil and transfer to a serving dish. Serve warm or

George concussed, Pacers banged up

The long break between games in the Eastern Conference finals could be welcomed by Indiana, after Pacers guard Paul George was diagnosed Wednesday with a concussion that will force him to complete several NBA-mandated procedures before he can return to the matchup against the Miami Heat.

The series, now tied at a game apiece, doesn't resume until Saturday night.

George was hurt in the fourth quarter of Miami's Game 2 victory. He stole the ball from Dwyane Wade, but wound up tumbling face-first to the court. Wade, also going for the ball, struck the back of George's head with his left knee.

Indiana not only needs to get George cleared but also had starters Lance Stephenson, Roy Hibbert and David West all either limping or ailing in the final minutes of the loss.

CFL rejects players' labour proposal

The CFL reached out directly to its players and fans Wednesday after the latest round of labour talks with the CFL Players' Association hit a snag.

The league announced it had rejected a proposal from the CFLPA and also made its first public declaration on the negotiations, unveiling details of the offer it made on May 15. Commissioner Mark Cohon said the league's offer would boost the average player salary by 12 per cent.

Western final. L.A. the first team to earn 2014 playoff win in Chicago, scoring six straight

Jeff Carter scored three of Los Angeles' six straight goals, and the Kings beat the Chicago Blackhawks 6-2 on Wednesday night to leave the Western Conference final tied at one game apiece.

Drew Doughty and Tyler Toffoli also scored in Los Angeles' five-goal third period as the Kings became the first visiting team to win in Chicago this post-season. The Blackhawks won their first seven home playoff games this year, but the Kings skated right by Chicago after the defending Stanley Cup champions took a 2-0 lead in the second period.

Game 3 of the best-of-seven series is Saturday night in Los Angeles.

Nick Leddy and Ben Smith scored for Chicago, and Corey Crawford made 25 saves.

The Blackhawks were in position for their fourth consecutive win before Doughty drove a slap shot by Crawford to tie it at 2 just 1:37 into the third. Carter then had another power-play score at 4:04 that gave Los Angeles the lead.

Tanner Pearson set up goals by Toffoli at 8:59 and Carter at 14:44, and Carter added an empty-netter for his seventh of the playoffs.

Storm stagger Knights at Memorial Cup

Guelph Storm players celebrate Tyler Bertuzzi's goal against the London Knights during second period action at the Memorial Cup in London, Ont., Wednesday. DAVE CHIDLEY/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Guelph Storm eliminated the host London Knights from the Memorial Cup with a 7-2 win Wednesday.

The Ontario Hockey League champion Storm went undefeated in the round robin at 3-0 and will play in Sunday's championship game.

The Val-d'Or Foreurs, 2-1, and Edmonton Oil Kings, 1-2, meet in Friday's semifinal with the winner facing the Storm for this year's Cup.

Scott Kosmachuk led the Storm with a hat trick, Tyler Bertuzzi scored twice and Jason Dickinson and Marc Stevens added a goal apiece for the Storm and their explosive offence that's produced 18 goals in three games in the tournament.

Brett Welychka and Josh Anderson replied for the host Knights, who were winless in their own tournament. London needed a win against their OHL rival to get into a tiebreaker game.

Knights goalie Anthony Stolarz stopped 14-of-17 shots and was replaced by Jake Patterson early in the second when he inadvertently kicked the puck into his own net. Patterson allowed four goals on 21 shots.

The Storm's Justin Nichols held off the Knights when they pressed late in the first period and midway through the second. He made 45 saves for the win.

Guelph also ousted London from this year's OHL playoffs on Apr. 11, so the host team had five weeks without a game prior to the MasterCard Memorial Cup.

Thunder torn asunder in San Antonio

NBA playoffs. Things go from bad to worse for OKC against Spurs in Game 2 of West finals

Tony Parker scored 22 points, Danny Green made seven three-pointers and added 21, and the San Antonio Spurs used a dominant third quarter to decimate the Oklahoma City Thunder 112-77 on Wednesday night, rolling to a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference finals.

Tim Duncan added 14 points and 12 rebounds, and Manu Ginobili and Boris Diaw had 11 points apiece off the bench.

Oklahoma City's Kevin Durant and Russell Westbrook each had 15 points, but the third-quarter barrage made spectators of both — not that they accomplished much when they did play. The star duo combined to shoot 13 for 40, including 4 for 14 in the third quarter.

Game 3 is Sunday at Oklahoma City.

Playing without Serge Ibaka and given two days to adjust to dropping Game 1 by 17 points, the Thunder performed worse.

Parker and Green each had eight points in the third quarter as San Antonio outscored Oklahoma City 33-18 in the period.

It was a shocking turn for the Thunder, who started well.

Oklahoma City opened more aggressive on both ends, especially defensively. They physicality disrupted the Spurs early and frustrated them emotionally.

Duncan was issued a technical with about five minutes left in the first quarter after complaining when Ed Malloy ruled he threw a hip into Durant.

It turned out the Spurs veteran had little to worry about, as the Thunder finished just 4 for 9 on free throws.

The Thunder scored five straight to open the game, with Westbrook's three capping the early run and producing what would become their largest lead of the series at 5-0.

Oklahoma City did not go under on pick-and-rolls as they did in Game 1, which allowed Parker more scoring opportunities. He took four shots in the opening five minutes. His first two baskets came on driving layups, including running right down the middle of the lane with Thabo Sefolosha trailing by a couple of steps.

San Antonio continued to struggle with its shot, but righted itself with offensive rebounding.

San Antonio closed the first half on a 25-8 run.

World Cup. 'Deep-rooted racism' rears head in Italy

FIFA vice-president Jeffrey Webb condemned "deep-rooted racism" in Italy on Wednesday after Mario Balotelli was racially abused while training with the national team.

A year after spearheading the strengthening of FIFA's discrimination sanctions, Webb is frustrated that some countries including Italy and Spain are not showing the commitment required for the fight against racism.

"National associations obviously really have to not just talk about zero tolerance — they have to put action behind it," Webb told The Associated Press in an interview in London. "If you look at some of the decisions that have been taken in Spain and Italy definitely that's cause for concern."

Balotelli faced racist chants again on Wednesday morning in Italy — this time at the national team's World Cup training base in Florence.

"Unfortunately, it just shows the deep-rooted racism and prejudice that exists obviously in the Italian community and society at large," said Webb, who heads FIFA's task force against discrimination. "It is a fight, it is a challenge."

FIFA stands bysked despite lawsuit

FIFA said Wednesday it is not considering changing kickoff times or adding mandatory cooling breaks during World Cup matches, despite being sued by Brazil's players' union because of health concerns.

FIFA said it spent nearly two years analyzing start times for Brazil and always considered players' health.

The players' federation filed a lawsuit this week to change kickoff times of the 24 matches scheduled to start at 1 p.m. local time, saying players would be at risk due to intense heat and humidity in some venues. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Double E doubles up on homers again in Boston

Edwin Encarnacion had two homers for the second straight game, and the Toronto Blue Jays beat Boston 6-4 on Wednesday night to send the Red Sox to their sixth consecutive loss.

Encarnacion has seven homers in his last six games. He is the first Toronto player to have four multi-homer games in a month, and the first major-leaguer to do so since Troy Tulowitzki in September of 2010.

Drew Hutchison (3-3) allowed one run in 5 1/3 innings for Toronto, which has won seven of its last nine games. The Blue Jays have won three consecutive series. Casey Janssen got his fifth save.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

You will jump right in and get things done today. Your mind is working fast and your body isn't far behind it, so do what feels right and do it magnificently. You will surprise a few people by what you achieve.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Your insight is such that others may wonder if you are psychic. Maybe you are, but there is nothing supernatural about your aims: you want to be a success and you want to be rich.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

There is no point making plans because whatever you decide is likely to be overtaken by other events. Just be ready to act when the opportunity arrives and don't be surprised if it's not what you were expecting.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

There are times when it is best to keep your feelings to yourself but this isn't one of them. You may surprise yourself with the intensity of your emotions over the next 24 hours. You've been keeping too much inside.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Others will be happy to do what you ask of them today if they feel that you value their efforts. Say all the right things and you won't have to lift a finger!

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

If you want to make an impression on people in positions of power, now is the time. The Sun in the career area of your chart urges you to do something that makes others sit up and take notice.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You will be inspired over the next few days. Every idea you have will be touched by genius. Remember though that ideas mean nothing unless you do something with them.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

The planets warn you may fall prey to worries and anxieties that at most others times would not bother you. Keep telling yourself that each and every one of them is an illusion.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You have been asking some searching questions of yourself and today you will discover that the answers you seek are not to be found in your career or in making more money.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Don't be afraid to break the rules. You may be a straight up person but sometimes even a Capricorn has to take a shortcut to get where they most want to be. So long as it does not hurt other people, it's not immoral.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You will be inspired over the next two or three days. The Sun in Gemini will encourage you to believe that all things are possible and that taking risks is not an option but a necessity.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

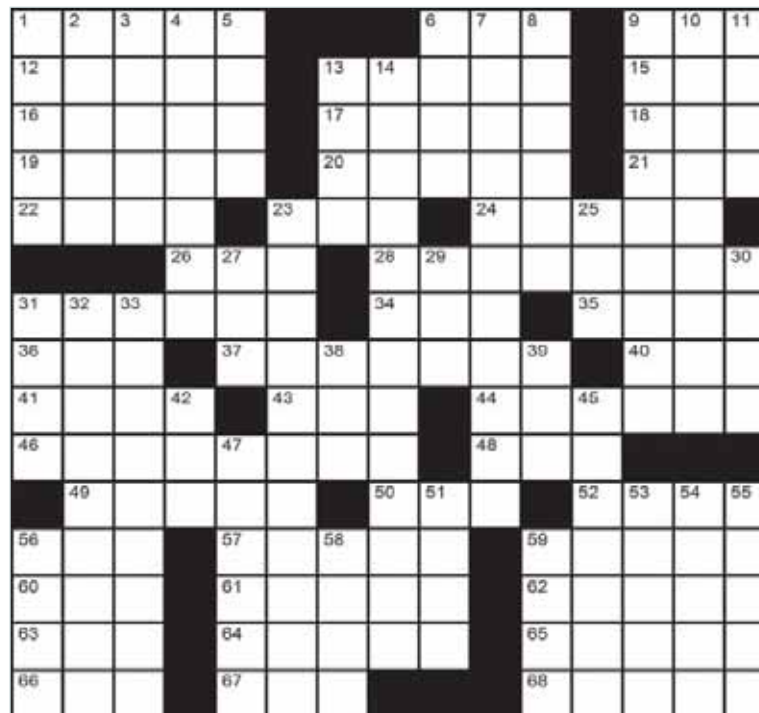

The solution to a problem that has been causing you sleepless nights will pop into your head today and you will kick yourself mentally for not having seen it sooner. Never mind, now you know what to do — so do it.
